

Forty Years Among the Old Booksellers of Philadelphia, With Bibliographical Remarks (Classic Reprint)

The qualifications required in each of the above departments are of a general mediocre character, such as any one with ordinary brains can soon learn a few months are generally sufficient. The old bookseller one who is worthy of the name must have high qualifications, besides the mere objective merits of the general tradesmen. The first requisite he requires is a thorough knowledge of literature he should be a cyclopaedia, able to answer questions about the general nature of books, and their authors. The whole field of history he should know, from Homer to Macaulay. The new discoveries in history, either biblical or general, he should know. The latest discoveries in Egyptian history, such as the 3000 years old papyri, with the biblical discoveries of Tischendorf and other profound scholars all should be known by him. I do not mean a very profound knowledge, but a general one. I am aware that in the past as well as the present mere old ragmen old junk dealers have been and are metamorphosed into old booksellers a disgrace to its high intellectual worth. I am also aware of some who are mere catalogue old booksellers and who, parrot-like, can spin you off the latest books collected by a Bohn or Quaritch, but are not aware of the contents of any of the books, nor of the special idiosyncracies of the authors. (Typographical errors above are due to OCR software and dont occur in the book.)
