

Look! We Have Come Through

Excerpt: ...you love me think you you do not hate me? Ha, since you love me to ecstasy it follows you hate me to ecstasy. Because when you hear me go down the road outside the house you must come to the window to watch me go, do you think it is pure worship? Because, when I sit in the room, here, in my own house, and you want to enlarge yourself with this friend of mine, such a friend as he is, yet you cannot get beyond your awareness of me you are held back by my being in the same world with you, do you think it is bliss alone? sheer harmony? No doubt if I were dead, you must reach into death after me, but would not your hate reach even more madly than your love? your impassioned, unfinished hate? Since you have a passion for me, as I for you, does not that passion stand in your way like a Balaams ass? and am I not Balaams ass golden-mouthed occasionally? But mostly, do you not detest my bray? Since you are confined in the orbit of me do you not loathe the confinement? Is not even the beauty and peace of an orbit an intolerable prison to you, as it is to everybody? But we will learn to submit each of us to the balanced, eternal orbit wherein we circle on our fate in strange conjunction. What is chaos, my love? It is not freedom. A disarray of falling stars coming to nought. LOGGERHEADS PLEASE yourself how you have it. Take my words, and fling Them down on the counter roundly; See if they ring. Sift my looks and expressions, And see what proportion there is Of sand in my doubtful sugar Of verities. Have a real stock-taking Of my manly breast; Find out if Im sound or bankrupt, Or a poor thing at best. For I am quite indifferent To your dubious state, As to whether youve found a fortune In me, or a flea-bitten fate. Make a good investigation Of all that is there, And then, if its worth it, be grateful- If not then despair. If despair is our portion Then let us despair. Let us make for the weeping willow. I dont care. DECEMBER NIGHT
