

What motivates a Japanese translator and theatre company to translate and perform a play about racial discrimination in the American South? What happens to a gay play when it is staged in a country where the performance of gender is a theatrical tradition? What are the politics of First Nations or Aboriginal theatre in Japanese translation and colour blind casting? Is a Canadian no drama that tells a story of the Japanese diaspora a performance in cultural appropriation or dramatic innovation? In looking for answers to these questions, Theatre Translation Theory and Performance in Contemporary Japan extends discussions of theatre translation through a selective investigation of six Western plays, translated and staged in Japan since the 1960s, with marginalized tongues and bodies at their core. The study begins with an examination of James Baldwins Blues for Mister Charlie, followed by explorations of Michel Marc Bouchards Les feluettes ou La repetition dun drame romantique, Tomson Highways The Rez Sisters and Dry Lips Oughta Move to Kapuskasing, Roger Bennetts Up the Ladder, and Daphne Marlatts The Gull: The Steveston t Noh Project. Native Voices, Foreign Bodies locates theatre translation theory and practice in Japan in the post-war Showa and Heisei eras and provokes reconsideration of Western notions about the complex interaction of tongues and bodies in translation and theatre when they travel and are reconstituted under different cultural conditions.
